Synagóga, Trnava

This stylish café, offering a unique blend of beauty, culture, and art, serves a variety of uses. It has a charming ambience and delicious coffee. What makes this café unique in Slovakia is the fact that it is located on the premises of a deconsecrated orthodox synagogue. In 2010, the 19th-century building was named the most elegantly renovated sacral building in Slovakia. The interior is curiously designed to accommodate parties in a glass-enclosed booth with bookcases, providing privacy without depriving guests of the visual experience and the proverbial "vibrant life" of the café.

Včelovina, Smolenice

The dilapidated, more than two-century-old parish barn building at the heart of the entire complex has been sensitively rebuilt. Elements that could be salvaged have been preserved, and the rest has been built with the utmost respect for the historical legacy here. There is also a production building, a presentation area with a tasting room, a shop, and the beautiful Medová kaviareň (Honey Café) with a terrace. The venue itself is educational in nature. It also includes a Bee Garden full of interesting monuments, bee-loving plants and herbs. The complex offers an insight into the history of beekeeping, its processes, and the work of bees and their products. In addition to honey and mead, the portfolio also includes the increasingly popular honey beer, cider, and spirit.

Arta, Piešťany

ARTA is the original name and building of the former chocolate and confectionery factory that operated on this site in Piešťany in the interwar period. Today, it is a space operated by the Iniciatíva ARTA civic association, which, with the support of the building's owner – the Trnava Self-Governing Region – and a loan, has reconstructed the factory premises and transformed the venue into a cultural and creative centre. Here you can find creative studios, local producers, a café, cultural events, and much more. The main idea of the centre is to create new opportunities in the city, to offer alternative cultural events, to attract young people back to the city, and, not least, to promote the development of creative industries and communities in the city.
