Slovakia is 80% mountainous and sits on the northern part of what is now the largest chain of mountains known as the Carpathians. Nature in Slovakia is not only beautiful, but also full of rare finds and rarities. Slovakia is one of the most forested countries in Europe. It is crisscrossed by many rivers and dotted with several lakes. We have beautiful caves, too. In Slovakia you can find 9 national parks in which you can enjoy educational paths that will give you access to the most interesting places. The most scenic trails take hikers across wooden foot bridges and up ladders.

You can also find over 1,300 mineral springs there. In fact, Slovakia claims to have more public mineral springs per capita than any other country. Slovakia has the second largest reserves of fresh drinking water on Europe. In Slovakia you can also find hot springs, most famous in Piešťany Spa.

Slovakia is active in all five programme areas of UNESCO: Education, Natural Sciences, Social and Human Sciences, Culture, and Information and Communication. It's a country rich in world cultural and natural heritage. Today, in Slovakia we have 5 cities, 9 wooden churches, 6 caves, 1 castle and many more wonderful places inscribed in the UNESCO World Heritage List. These places are worth a visit at least once in a lifetime. Slovakia also offers a UNESCO Intangible Heritage which consist of 7 items such as fujara – musical instrument, modrotlač – type of art made on a fabric material, drotárstvo – wire work, and more.

Like a Slovak Kingdom

Slovakia has one of Europe's largest concentrations of castles and châteaux per capita. There are about 220 castles and 425 châteaux in a country with the entire population far smaller than the population of New York City. If you consider that Slovakia is not that big it's like you have a castle everywhere you go. We really recommend visiting the Smolenice Castle, the romantic and picturesque sight in Slovakia.

Slovakia is rich with wineries and breweries. The wine region is mainly on the south of the country where they have a better conditions for vineyards. Autumn brings with it vintage areas, vintage festivities, wine tastings and other events associated with this drink. The largest wine-growing area in Slovakia is located at the foot of the Little Carpathians in Western Slovakia, where it includes 120 wine-growing villages grouped in a dozen districts.
